Shinji Murakami
Gold/ Silver Flowers, 2014
Metal leaf, acrylic, and clear acrylic resin on wood panel
24 x 24 inches
61 x 61 cm

Shinji Murakami (b. 1980 in Osaka, lives and works in New York) uses his love of 8-bit video game expressions and simple vector lines as a springboard into his own exciting world of story telling. In 2003, Shinji began creating 8-bit map works and street art, and is now also working on 3D-8bit sculptures that give physical form to flat 8-bit images produced since 2009. A three-dimensional art piece that looks as if it were made out of cubes, "3D-8Bit" was born from the idea that you could translate the pixelated bumpiness of 8-bit imagery into a three-dimensional form.
